

Corrigendum: Association of thyroid-stimulating hormone with lipid concentrations: An 11-year longitudinal study

Ville L. Langén | Teemu J. Niiranen | Pauli Puukka | Jouko Sundvall | Antti M. Jula

In the main article from pages 120 to 127 of volume 86, issue 1 (January 2017) of Clinical Endocrinology,¹ the correct phrases are written below:

- On page 121, under the section Statistical Analyses, this should be “HDL cholesterol $<1.3 \text{ mmol L}^{-1}$ in women (n = 430) and HDL cholesterol $<1.0 \text{ mmol L}^{-1}$ in men (n = 239).”
- On page 124, under the section Effect of exclusion of participants with high-risk baseline lipid values from longitudinal regression analyses, it should read “($\beta = 0.04$, SE = 0.02, $P = .003$) could be detected in women (data not shown).”
